

New Procedure for Day-of-Service Projects

by Eric Petersen, WAA Publicity Chair

Part of what makes the WAA such a great association is the willingness of the members to donate their skills and time to help other organizations. One of main ways the WAA accomplishes this is through the Day of Service events. Members of the WAA volunteer to help an organization with work that either is too difficult for the organization to handle themselves or too costly for them to pay to have the work done. Because the WAA wants to continue giving back to the general public, a new application process has been established to ensure all projects have the opportunity to be reviewed by the WAA. In order to have your project considered by the WAA, you must fill out a brief one-page application that explains the scope of the project, significance to the arboricultural industry and other details regarding the project. You can find a copy of the application on the WAA website, or email Eric Petersen to get a copy.

All applications are due by January 15th, 2010. Accepted projects will be announced during the WAA business meeting at the annual conference. Applications must be sent to Eric via email, eric@petersenassoc.com or fax 262-432-0790. If you have any questions, please contact Eric. The WAA is looking forward to another great year of service within Wisconsin!
